Judges Training Update

Submitted by Phil DiTrollo

On Saturday, August 17th, we held our annual Judges Training. Everything went well – apart from only twelve NGJC members showing up. And before you ask, yes, this was essentially the same group that shows up for most of what our club does. Twelve Judges is substantially fewer than what is needed to hold a properly staffed Concours. Why does this matter? It means several Judges will have to cover multiple positions and the number of Jags judged by each team will be larger, taking longer for each team to finish.

Why is it that most of the work done by our club always falls on the shoulders of the same small group of members?

If this hits home, great – that's my intention. If you have been a Judge in the past, I need you to step up and make a renewed commitment to your club. If your certification has lapsed, I can get you recertified. If you have never been a Judge, I can get you ready through our apprentice program. Judging is a great way to meet your fellow club members and perhaps learn a little more about the cars we have committed ourselves to.

If this has prompted you to get involved, fantastic! The JCNA rules state that you must complete a review of the current year's rule changes and pass the Judge's test no later than 30 days prior

Norcross. Let's make this year no exception.

Phil DiTrollo held an informative and productive judges training session on August 17 at his office in Suwanee. Speaking of judges, have you ever considered becoming one? We could always use more judges. I think I was the last member to go through the apprenticeship program to become a JCNA Certified Concours Judge. If you're interested, just reach out to me, Phil, or Bill Flavelle.

By now the early registration period for the Southeast British Car Festival at the Dillard House in Dillard (Rabun County) Georgia has closed. We have seven Jags registered so far. If you didn't pre-register, no worries, you can still show your Jag on Saturday, September 14.

Day-of-show registration is $65. The Dillard House has been sold to a real estate investment group that plans to turn the property into a resort hosting special events such as weddings. This could be the last British car show at Dillard. You don't want to miss what could be the last Dillard!

SAVE THE DATE: Our Club Holiday Party will be on December 7 from 2-4 pm. We are considering possible restaurants to host our party, but haven't made a final selection yet. I will send out a blast when everything is finalized.

Jaguar Ups Planned Spending As It Continues To Invest In Combustion Engines

By Carla Westerheide, from Electrive magazine

JLR (Jaguar Land Rover) will invest £18 billion in its electric future over the next five years, £3 billion more than it initially announced in April 2023. That is mainly because the carmaker wants to keep producing models with combustion engines.

The initial plan was to convert the Halewood plant (UK) to a purely electric production facility. The Wolverhampton engine plant, which currently produces combustion engines, will manufacture electric drive units and battery packs for JLR's next generation of vehicles.

In February 2024, JLR announced that it is moving away from its goal of launching six all-electric cars by 2026 and will instead focus on hybrids and plug-in hybrids, as the demand for battery-electric cars has slowed down. Autocar writes that JLR CFO Richard Molyneux told analysts at the company's investor day in June: "Until one powertrain technology properly wins globally we are going to continue to have to invest in multiple powertrains at the same time, so that probably will drive investment up."

Specifically, JLR is planning to invest an additional half a billion this year, increasing the planned investment from three to 3.5 billion pounds. In the years to come, it expects to up investments by one billion pounds per year. Most of the investments – specifically 65 per cent – between now and 2028 have been earmarked for electric mobility, Molyneux said.

As mentioned above, the British car manufacturer, which is part of the Indian Tata

Group, revised its roadmap earlier this year and only wants to launch four BEVs by 2026. These include the Range Rover Electric SUV and the electric Range Rover Sport. Both are based on the MLA platform, which supports combustion engines, hybrids and battery-electric drives. Technical data for a BEV model based on this platform is not yet known. However, JLR will probably publish details soon, as the electric SUV will launch this year.

According to media reports, the Range Rover Electric is expected to be the first to go on sale next year. However, nothing is certain yet, as the manufacturer has emphasised that it is prepared to delay the launch to perfect it. What is even more interesting is that, according to Autocar, JLR claims to have some 38,000 pre-orders for the latter.

There are also plans for two (or three) electric Jaguar models that will use the BEV architecture JEA, which is short for Jaguar Electrified Architecture. There are also no details about these cars yet. As previously reported, the all-electric Jaguar I-Pace, currently the brand's only electric model, will no longer be produced in 2025.

Just last month, JLR also revived its Freelander brand for future electric cars. These will be based on a platform from its Chinese partner Chery, probably the Chery E0X. The vehicles will be built for the 50:50 joint venture CJLR (Chery-JLR) and will, for the time being, only be sold in China under the Freelander brand. They are also intended to be exported worldwide later, JLR added. Previously, JLR confirmed that it would use Chery's M3X and E0X modular platforms for future.

“Until one powertrain technology properly wins globally we are going to continue to have to invest in multiple powertrains at the same time, so that probably will drive investment up.”

EURO 2024

October 19th - The Preserve at Verdae

For 2024 we are celebrating the European automobiles that have been born out of great collaborations across European countries and with countries in the New World and even Japan. Think Shelby bringing together British sports cars with American muscle to create the Cobra and Alpine Tiger. Think of all the beautiful Italian sports cars with American V8s powering them. (Like the Italian beauty with Ford powered, Pantera, featured on the official 2024 EURO poster.) There's also all of the American, French, German and British cars who's styling benefitted by a "nip and tuck" from Italian design firms and coach builders. And, we're not forgetting the American and Japanese cars made better through Lotus Engineering (and others — Nash Healey, anyone?).

We're calling the results of these special cross-boarder collaborations the Original Hybrids. To our knowledge, this is the first time a major automotive event has featured these automobiles.

Where:

Embassy Suites - The Preserve at Verdae
650 Verdae Boulevard, Greenville, SC 29607

When:

Saturday, October 19, 2024, 10:00 AM to 4:00 PM

Cars will load the field from 7:30 AM to 9:30 AM.

Registration Closes: October 4 (There will be no exceptions to this deadline in order to give time for final layout.)

Registration Fees:

For Sale: 2002 Jaguar XJ

Submitted by Rosalyn Bush

I am a 2002 Jaguar XJ owner. It has been my car since newly purchased and has 84,000 miles on it. I have all service records and have maintained it since my husband passed away. I am semi-retired and no longer need the luxury of 2 cars.

I love this car and it shows in its condition. It is great for driving around town and short trips. It has always been a great car but I am downsizing my lifestyle and would like someone who has an appreciation of this car to purchase it. Located in Sandy Springs.
